

ERWIN

Dear Cousin Robert,

I've been reading David McCullough's, "Mornings On Horseback." A most facinating story of the Teddie Roosevelt family complete with family skeletons-in-the-closet. With a whole ~~xxxxxxxxxx~~ chapter on Martha Bulloch and some of her forebears. About her brother Irvine Bulloch and her half brother James Dunwoody Bulloch's involvement with the "Alabama" in the War Between the States. Some of this is mentioned in O.F.C. By the way, the Bullochs and the Irvines came from ^{near} Kirkintilloch, a small town about 25 miles northeast of Glascoe.

As a boy, I remember a visit by a tall distinguished gentlemen from Macon, Ga. His name was "Uncle" Jimmie Roosevelt. We children were sent off to the back of the house. All of a sudden, we would hear some kind of knocking on the floor. Later, found out that it was "Uncle" Jimmie knocking on the floor with his walking cane. "Uncle" Jimmie stuttered and by hitting the floor with his cane, he could get a few words out. And when he sang, he would loose his stutter.

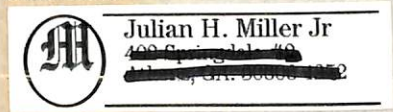

Well, so much for that. I checked "Our Family Circle" pages 480 and 458. Lenoir Moss Erwin married Helen Pruyn Roosevelt Oct 15, 1879. Is cousin Helen Roosevelt any kin to the Theodore Roosevelts or possibly some other branch of the New York Roosevelts?

Hope all is well with you and yours, and I'd appreciate hearing from you at your convenience.

Faithfully,

Julian
