

John Kelly

Sacket was where you said it would be. Part of South Brooklyn neighborhood until 1960 when it went upscale. Renamed Carroll Gardens after a fellow from Maryland, and the only Roman Catholic signer of the Declaration of Independence, Irish of course. Carrol sent soldiers during the Revolution to fight at Brooklyn Hieghts. Settled by Irish dock workers in the early nineteenth century. In the 1900 the Irish moved on and the Italians moved in. Supposedly neutral territory between the Gambino and Bonnano families, and the place where Al Capone was married, with many Italian restaurants and markets. The neighborhood is bordered by the BQE on the west; Hoyt St. between Degraw and 5th St. and Smith St. between 5th & the Gowanus Expressway on the East; Degraw on the North to Gowanus on the south. Before the expressways this neighborhood adjoined Red Hook, and those fellows were called hookers, and the fellows on the other side of the creek were called creekers. All this from a book called Brooklyn Neighborhoods, available at Barnes & Noble for 29.95. I put this book on the library's wish list for the New York collection.

Sacket runs from the Buttermilk Channel (Ward 6) and dead ends at the Gowanus Canel (Ward 10). The John Kelly we found in the 1870 census index was from Ward 10, M, W, age 33, born Ireland, Roll 951, page 656.
