Hero, Patriot, Statesman-By John T. Boifeuillet

HEN Mrs. Louise Taylor Kibbee passed away a few days ago there ceased to beat the heart of a noble woman, who was the widow of a former distinguished Georgia jurist, Judge Charles Carroll Kibbee, a native, son of Macon, who was a recognized power in fearless and patriotic leadership in the thrilling march of throbbing events during the horrible transition period of Republican hayonet rule in this state, following the close of the conflict between the north and the south.

This brave patriot defiantly combatted the plundering cohorts of reconstruction, and performed a great part in the legislative arena, convention hall and other fields in assisting to overthrow the carpet bag and scalawag dynasty of abuse, corruption, force and ruin.

Firmness, courage and ability characterized Judge Kibbee as a member of the memorable legislature of 1865-1866, notable particularly for the inauguration of Charles J. Jenkins as governor of what was hoped to be the permanent state government of the people of Georgia, following Appomattox. But the tragic drama of reconstruction soon commenced, and Kibbee was one of the valiant champions of righteous resistance.

Judge Kibbee's qualities as, a superior legislator were strikingly in evidence as a member of the senate which convened on November 1, 1871, two days after the startling public announcement of the resignation of the Republican governor. Rufus B. Bullock, and his disappearance from the state, and the swearing in by Chief Justice Lochrane of Benjamin Conley, president of the former senate, as acting governor.

Senator Kibbee exercised great weight and exerted a powerful influence in the deliberations and debates over the problems of grave import which came before the senate. He served in the senate for six years, representing the Fourteenth District, comprising the counties of Pulaski, Dooly, Wilcox and Dodge.

While there he was chairman of the committee on finance and member of the committees on general judiciary, banks and other leading committees. As chairman of the finance committee he acted as chairman of the joint finance committee, in 1875, which considered the audit and examination of the state treasury. In that same year he was appointed special commissioner by the governor to adjust the accounts of the state and its northern financial agent.

Senator Kibbee held commanding place in the investigation of the bond troubles, incident to the Bullock administration. The legislature declared nearly $8,000,000 of the bonds to be void, illegal and fraudulent. Historical pages record this: "Colonel C. C. Kibbee gave valuable assistance in the investigation of the bond matter. A gentleman of public spirity and graceful courtesy, a lawyer of ability and discrimination, and a legislator of uncommon qualifications, careful, searching and devoted to the public interests, Colonel Kibbee made an enviable reputation in the general assembly."

Judge Kibbee was frequently a delegate to important political conventions, and served on the state Democratic executive committee. He presided with ability, imparitality, justice and courage as judge of the Oconee Superior Court Circuit. Following his retirement from the bench, about 1888, he returned to Macon, the city of his birth, and resumed the practice of law.

Judge Kibbee received his primary education in Macon, and graduated from Princeton College in 1858. He then went to Athens and read law under the celebrated Thomas R. Cobb. He commenced the practice at Hawkinsville, which was interrupted by his enlistment in the Confederacy, in . 1861, as orderly sergeant of Company G, Tenth Georgia Infantry. He received seyeral promotions for heroic conduct on the battlefield, reaching the rank of lieutenantcolonel. Among the famous battles in which he bore a gallant part were Malvern Hill, Cold Harbor, Chancellorsville, Fredericksburg, Sharpshurg, Wilderness, Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, Gettysburg and Petersburg. He was severely wounded at Sayage Station.

The surrender of General Lee found Colonel Kibbee in Virginia, and he walked from High Bridge in that state to Macon, consuming about three weeks on the journey. He soon resumed the practice of law at Hawkinsville. Judge Kibbee was a Mason and Knight Templar, grand master of the grand lodge of Odd Fellows of Georgia, and represented the grand lodge, I. O. O. F., of the United States at Philadelphia and Baltimore. He was a vestryman of the Episcopal Church.
