

MACPHERSON-GRANT OF BALLINDALLOCH.

Sir George Macpherson-Grant, 5th Bart., of Ballindalloch, co. Elgin, and of Invereshie, co. Inverness, J.P., Member of the Royal Company of Archers, the King's Bodyguard of Scotland, b. 15 May, 1890; s. his father 1914.

Lineage—The MACPHERSONS of Invereshie are the chiefs of a large tribe which for ages has been distinguished under the designation of "Slioch-Gillies," and which is composed of many considerable families, not only of the name of Macpherson, but of others, such as the Gillieses, Gillespies, &c. The founder of this tribe was GILLIES, or ELIAS MACPHERSON, the first of Invereshie, who lived in the reign of Alexander III. He was a younger son of Ewan, or Eugene Boan (the fair-complexioned), and brother of Kenneth Macpherson, ancestors of the MACPHERSONS of Cluny Macpherson, in Inverness-shire. Ewan Boan was son of Murlach, or Murdoch, and grandson of GILMARTAN, chief of the powerful clan Chattan, during the reign of DAVID I, who, having devoted himself to the service of the church, became Abbot of Kingussie, which title he enjoyed until 1153, when upon the demise, issueless, of his elder brother, DIARMD, the chieftainship devolved upon him. A few years subsequently, he procured from the pope a dispensation to enable him to marry, and m. a dau. of the Thane of Calder. His son, EWAN BAAN, was sometimes called Macpherson, which signifies "the son of a parson" (derived from his father's clerical profession); and surnames about that time becoming hereditary, it was perpetuated in his descendants.
